UT Prof Leaves For Toronto Post

A University of Texas professor of music once described by the Saturday Review as "having his eyes on the stars" and who was responsible for bringing famed composer Igor Stravinsky to Austin has resigned from the faculty to protect his "personal creative initiative."

He is Dr. Lothar Klein, for the past six years an assistant professor of music. Dr. Klein has quit to go to the University of Toronto as an associate professor of music.

"I have the greatest respect for UT," Dr. Klein said, "and the highest expectations for its future development. But a change of atmosphere seemed imperative for continued personal creative initiative."

Dr. Klein said he is resigning "as of Sept. 1."
