

UT Professor Does Mexican Music Study

Dr. Lothar Klein, University of Texas assistant professor of music, will arrive in Mexico City Sunday to spend several weeks surveying aspects of the contemporary music field in Mexico.

Dr. Klein's trip has been arranged under auspices of the University's Institute of Latin American Studies to provide the Music Department with a more complete knowledge of Mexican composers, performing artists and musical organizations.

Dr. Klein is on the planning committee for the University's annual Inter - American Symposium of Contemporary Music. He also is a member of the Foreign Student Scholarship Exchange Board which seeks to expand student exchange programs.

He joined the University music faculty in 1962, teaching courses in theory and composition.
